Annual Session of the Platt Zouaves.

Fourteen years ago this fall the Thirty-fourth Ohio Infantry, better known as the "Platt Zouaves," left Camp Dennison, over one thousand strong, and embarked for the seat of war in Virginia, with Colonel A. Saunders Platt commanding. A finer body of troops than this gallantly uniformed regiment never left the State. It being the first Ohio regiment that ever donned the showy garb of the French Zouave, and composed as it was of young men, for the most part, its march through the principal streets of Cincinnati created a marked sensation. Ascending the Ohio river by boats, they soon after landed on the hostile soil of West Virginia, where most of their campaigning was done.

In their maiden battle at Chapmanville they were victorious, where they evinced that stern courage and strict discipline for which they were ever after celebrated. Col. Platt soon after, being empowered to raise another regiment (the Fifty-fourth Ohio), was commissioned by Governor Tod as Brigadier General, and the command of the Zoo Zouaves devolved upon Lieutenant Colonel Jno. T. Toland, "Old Jack," as the boys loved to call him—as brave a man as ever drew a sword.

Toland loved his "boys," and they in turn manifested their devotion to him by cheerfully responding to his commands in battle, on the march and in bivouac, for a year or more, until that fatal day at Winchester, Va., where he fell mortally wounded. The rebels paid dearly for his loss, as the best portion of that beautiful city was laid in ashes by his infuriated soldiers. Not a fight of any consequence in that portion of the State occurred but what the red tassels of the zouaves were conspicuous. There was "Bartonsville" and "Pineville," and "Kernstown," and "Winchester," and "Mall Town," and "Fisher's Hill," and "Cedar Creek" (this last battle in which the day was finally won by "Little Phil Sheridan" who has been immortalized by the poet "Rudyard Kipling's" "The Dragoon"), and a number of other lesser engagements, all testifying to the splendid pluck of the grand "old Thirty-fourth." In the four years of constant fighting and marching (for the major portion of them reinforced as veterans) the regiment suffered terribly. In fact, it was reduced so in numbers that it finally was consolidated with the Thirty-sixth Ohio, and when at last peace dawned upon the land and the "boys" came marching home again, not more than a third of the original one thousand could be found.

Last night a few of these battle-scarred veterans met at their seventh annual reunion, in this city, and "fought their battles" over again, and exchanged those greetings so pleasant to an old soldier, with their comrades of many a hard fought field. Fourteen years is a long time. Many changes have occurred. The stripping of 1861 has developed into a peace-loving citizen and a father of a family. More bald-heads can be mustered at the mess table than when they first met in camp as strangers. The "boys" are growing old, but never while the last will they forget "the times that tried men's souls."

A splendid banquet at the Buckeye Restaurant, last night, was attended by thirty-three of the "vets," presided over by Charles E. Callahan as President. Songs, speeches, toasts and a general hilarity prevailed until one o'clock this morning. The following named veterans were present for duty last night: Harry Blackburn, Chas. E. Callahan, James Donnelly, Wm. Miller, John W. Kirk, John McCarren, John Meagher, Miles Warner, John Coffee, John W. Packham, Alex. Smith, Ed. Miller, Ben. Pile, Ed. Faulkner, Wm. Latham, O'Conner Reel, Elmer Jones, James McIntire, John Brown, S. R. S. West, Frank Millard, John A. G. Roberts, James A. Thomson, John Timmerman, T. C. McMillen, John Grace, Martin Madden, David Gordon, John S. Miller, Chris. Bauer and M. L. Hawkins.

The next meeting will be at Ripley, Ohio, on the 23d of September, 1876. The following officers were elected to serve for the ensuing year: President, Capt. C. W. Boyd; Vice President, Capt. Jas. P. Donnelly; Secretary, Robert McF. Smith; Treasurer, John Meagher.

FIRE.

The alarm of fire from box 41 about 7 o'clock last night called the engines to a fire in the stable of Pat. Gilligan, a hackman, on New street, just east of Syracuse. The fire originated through the carelessness of a Kentuckian named Michael Cary, who had just driven into the stable a load of hay. The gas was lighted on one side of the building, and as the countryman drove his mules in, the hay caught fire, and the building, in a brief space of time, was wrapped in flames.

A lively wind communicated the blaze to the three tenement houses on the south. Two of them, Nos. 6 and 8 New street, were completely destroyed. They were owned by a Mrs. Wood.

Gilligan's loss amounts to $5,000; no insurance. The loss on the tenement houses will reach $2,500; insured to the amount of $2,000. The houses on North street, owned by Messrs. Potter & Weyman, were considerably injured. The mules attached to the hay wagon could not be rescued, and fell victims to the flames. Mr. Cary himself had a narrow escape. The fire burnt but for a short time, but blazed fiercely while it lasted.

Court Cuttings.

District Court convenes next Monday. Ann Naylor was appointed administratrix of Joseph Naylor. Personality, $2,600.

The will of John W. Carter was admitted to probate, and Mary F. Carter, his widow, was appointed executrix. Personality, $1,600; realty, $10,000. The city yesterday filed a petition against the Cincinnati and Indiana R. R. Co., and others for the appointment of a receiver, and a judgment asked against the defendants for $41,228, with interest from 1871, and if the judgment is not paid within a reasonable time, the plaintiffs ask for the sale of the road. The evidence in the Wm. A. Hagney case, in which is sought the appointment of a guardian for Mr. Hagney, on the ground that he is an imbecile and is unable to take care of his property, has not yet closed. Several witnesses testified that he was usually drunk and unable to attend to his property. On behalf of the defense Louis Dehn, J. Luken, Wm. Dehn, J. D. Schermer and H. Bush, neighbors of Mr. Hagney, testified that he was not an habitual drunkard, and that he was capable of taking care of his business.

W. A. Hagney, the defendant, was then examined. He has lived in Cincinnati twenty years, and carries on the stationery and book business; did not have the delirium tremens when visited by Dr. Fisher, but feigned illness for the purpose of discovering the disposition and designs of his family toward him; one reason he went to Europe was that his wife might see what it was to be without a man, and treat him better when he returned; gave his wife $6,200 in bonds; she would not tell him afterward what she did with them; no man in the country could stand what he did; his son-in-law said in the family: "I will have to go or he will"; it is over half a century since he knew where his kids were; his wife took all the money, and he could not even raise enough to pay for a pair of boots. His wife taught his children to disrespect him. His son, 10 years of age, said to his mother: "Why do you not get him arrested and sent to the Work-house, and you will have no trouble with him."

Base-Ball.

Trains will leave the Plum-street D. depot at 2:25 and 2:40 o'clock to-day, conveying passengers to the new Cincinnati grounds, to witness the second game between the Red Stockings and the Philadelphia Phillies. The last game between the two clubs was very close, the score standing 6 to 5, in favor of the Philadelphia; it being claimed that the game was won by trickery. A large attendance is expected this afternoon.

The Hippodrome.

This afternoon and evening will be the last opportunities offered of seeing the greatest show that ever pitched its canvas in our midst. The lumber used in erecting the seats will be sold at auction to-morrow morning at ten o'clock. From Cincinnati the Hippodrome will go to Richmond, Ind., thence to Dayton, Cleveland, and other cities in the northern part of this State. The audiences upon yesterday afternoon and evening were immense, hundreds being unable to find seats when the doors opened. The balloon ascension was made in safety. Sailor Ned and the balloon came down near Morrow, about forty miles distant, and arrived in the evening. The balloon was damaged considerably by the wind. There will be this afternoon and evening a grand running race three times around the circle by eight prominent residents of Cincinnati. Four competitors at each trial.

Odd-fellows' Monumental Association.

A recent statement by Mr. Jas. P. Epply, Treasurer of the Odd-fellows' Monumental Association, shows the condition of the monument fund as collected by the Odd-fellows of the city by means of public entertainments and through other sources. The receipts from the fair at Greenwood Hall in April last were $4,958 32.

The following is a true statement of the financial condition of the Association at this date:

Two mortgage notes.....$8,000 00
Five interest notes.....840 00
Cash in bank.....6,836 99
Interest on deposit account.....42 12

Total amount of assets of the Association up to date.....$14,929 11

On Friday next two games of base-ball are to be played by the Cincinnati Base-ball club, the receipts to be donated to the monumental fund. The first, which commences at 2 P. M., will be of the "maiden" order, and an elegant ball game will be presented to the poorest player in the company. The names of the players are as follows:

Hedger King—Robert Hedger, Captain; A. B. King, J. D. Smith, E. G. Kennett, Joe Wright, W. E. Moorehead, W. G. George, Geo. Seewald and H. R. Hayward.

DeBuckler Nine—B. O. M. DeBuckler, Captain; W. B. DeBuckler, R. D. Jones, Henry Heuer, E. L. Boyce, Saml. Rylington, B. Berkmyer, L. C. Frantz and Geo. Rosenboer.

This will be followed at 4:30 by a game between the Cincinnati Reds and the Blue Stockings which promises to be of much interest.

The arbitration principle is worth something; but when nations refuse to submit to that method of settling their disputes it is worth nothing. The Fall Mall Gazette suggests that it shall be an international law that before any nations shall be allowed to go to war they must submit their cause to a court of arbitration, which will decide whether they shall fight at once whether they are prepared to do so, or whether they decline they are to be attacked by the nations and taught what war is. This is an ingenious method, perhaps, but like many other ingenious things it may fall when brought to practical test, and it is not likely that it can ever reach a point where it might be tested.—Boston Traveller.

Religious Opera.

There is always consolation for the philosophic mind, and it takes and ale to console him. Yesterday's editorial that Italian Opera was to be hoped for, not expected, but to-day joy leaped in our bosoms as we read the Tribune article upon "Church Chorus." Now we understand why average opera does not draw the public of New York, for who would pay $2 to hear mediocre singers when others almost as good can be heard on Sunday for twenty-five cents—and that charged to the credit of one's charity account. There has been a great deal said about the expenditure for church choirs and now the figures are before us. From these we learn that organists are paid as high as $2,500 per annum and singers up to $1,300, and nobody who knows the work done for the money can say these sums are exorbitant. Taken in detail the sums are trifling and well earned, but the sum total is astonishing. Half a million of money expended for Sunday singing. Now let us examine the matter squarely and think it out.

The first fact is that the cost of the choir is almost as much as the salary of the minister. In most instances it is more than half, and a fair average may be struck at $3,000. Now a minister works for his wages and has something to show for his labor. But a choir spends its endeavor in airy nothings of sweet sound, and that is all there is of it. No, there is worse behind, for a fine choir is fatal to the true spirit of public worship. Those trained voices are impatient of unskilled support, their aim is to perform for the public, not to praise God, and the fancy variations and intricate cadences take the place of the good honest congregational singing that was wont to raise from our churches to the footstool of the Creator. There is more music in the thousand voiced swell of the "Old Hundred" than in the dainty warblings of some of the "Ave Marias," and we regret to see the church for the spirit of secular criticism. The service is mutilated that the church may be crowded, and we have seen quiet connoisseurs stealing away before the sermon. They come to church to hear the music.—New York Mail.

Floating.

Men are drowned by raising their arms above water, the unbuoyed weight of which depresses the head. Other animals have neither motion or ability to act in a similar manner, and therefore swim naturally. When a man falls into deep water, he will rise to the surface, and will continue there if he does not elevate his hands. If he moves his hands under water, in any way he pleases, his head will rise so high as to give him free liberty to breathe; and if he will use his legs, as in the act of walking (or rather walking up stairs), his shoulders will rise above the water, so that he may use the less exertion with his hands, or apply them to other purposes. These plain directions are recommended to the recollection of those who have not learned to swim in their youth, as they may be found highly advantageous in many cases.—Sanitarian.

REASON TO REJOICE.

Surrounded as we are by adulterators of food and drink, and living in the midst of their vile products, it is to be produced at a national meeting, it is to be told where a real and genuine article can be obtained. Such a species of gratification may be had by purchasing a box of Dr. Price's Flavouring Extract, or a bottle of his Flavoring Extract. Economical housekeepers will not doubt have every reason to rejoice after making such a thrifty investment. The following articles are made with Dr. Price's Baking Powder, and are really elegant, while the flavor is tender, and makes such a delicious and healthy treat, as no natural product of the earth can give. As a national standard of excellence, it is made. Aside from this, their absolute purity renders them wholesome and agreeable to the most delicate stomach.

O, cruel Death, why lay your hand
Upon so young and sweet a child,
Whose lips so often lisped my name,
I think I see sweet Ida now,
So full of innocence and glee;
I always met her with a smile,
She always had a smile for me.

Ida, sweet child, a sad farewell,
We mourn thy loss and feel thy pain,
But yet 'tis joy amidst thy grief,
To feel our loss has been your gain.
